

Internet Slang Dictionary

A guide to everyday acronyms and obscure abbreviations

Internet slang dictionary consists of slang and acronyms that users have created as an effort to save keystrokes. Terms have originated from various sources including Bulletin Boards, AIM, Yahoo, IRC, Chat Rooms, Email, Cell Phone Text Messaging, and some even as far back as World War II.

Internet Slang is also called AOL speak, AOLese, AOLbonics, netspeak, or leetspeak (although leetspeak traditionally involves replacing letters with numbers and is reserved for games). While it does save keystrokes, netspeak can prove very hard to read.

I collected a very long list of the internet slang in this book, so I hope you will like it.

Enjoy!

Mr. Doody
